

Supplemental Security Income (SSI) in California

What is SSI?

Supplemental Security Income (SSI), is a federal program that provides monthly cash payments to people in need. SSI is for people who are 65 or older, as well as blind or disabled people of any age, including children.

To qualify for SSI, you must also have little or no income and few resources. The value of the things you own must be less than $2,000 if you're single or less than $3,000 for married couples living together. We don't count the value of your home if you live in it, and, usually, we don't count the value of your car. We may not count the value of certain other resources either, such as a burial plot.

To get SSI, you must also apply for any other government benefits for which you may be eligible. You must live in the United States or the Northern Mariana Islands to get SSI. If you're not a U.S. citizen, but you lawfully reside in the United States, you may still be able to get SSI. For more information, read a copy of Supplemental Security Income (SSI) for Noncitizens (Publication No. 05-11051).

The state of California adds money to the federal payment. The single payment you get at the beginning of each month includes both the federal SSI payment and your supplement from California.

Medical assistance

If you get SSI, you can usually get medical assistance (Medi-Cal) automatically. A separate Medi-Cal application isn't necessary. If you have questions about Medi-Cal, contact your local county health or human services office.

Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP)

People who get SSI in California cannot get SNAP benefits, formerly known as food stamps, because the state adds money to the federal SSI payment instead.

However, you may be able to get SNAP benefits:

- While you're waiting for a decision on your SSI application;
- If your application for SSI is denied;
- If you move to another state; or
- Beginning August 2016, for months in which your SSI payments were interrupted or suspended.

For more information, contact your local county health or human services office.

Other social services

Individuals who qualify for SSI often are eligible for additional programs and services provided by their local county health or human services office. These other services or benefits may include:

- A special allowance for assistance dogs for people who are blind or who have a disability;
- Certain domestic and personal care services provided to eligible people who are elderly, blind, or who can't perform the services themselves, and who can't safely remain in their own homes unless such services are provided; and
- Protective services.

For more information, contact your local county health or human services office.
